Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

No one can be certain that the "Ham and Eggs" or "$30 Every Thursday" will not be enacted by the people at the polls, come November 7. All those who have been willing to think the plan through have mentally rejected as just another panacea with no medicinal merit. No one person will accept a promisory note to be paid in a year, and then pay four cents more in taxes than the face of the note. It just isn't done among sane people and we believe that the majority is sane. So that even, if adopted, it will not work because no one wants to sell a dollar's worth of goods and then add $1.04 to it make the dollar. In effect the seller has given his goods away and then paid $1.04 for the privilege of selling the goods. If one person can't stand this racket the whole population of the state can stand it no better.

But it is not a foregone conclusion that Ham and Eggs may not be with us after November 7. There are a lot of elderly folks in California who have graduated from the Townsend class. They have dispaired of ever seeing $200 a month materalize through a Federal tax to provide it, and they are now enrolled in a class conducted by certain unscrupulous circus barkers in Hollywood. By contributing dimes and nickles enough they are deluging the state with their strange and curious propaganda. Their children who would like to see the old folks cared for at somebody's else expense, they, too, are pulling with might and main, to make the dream come true at the polls.

But even if Ham ang Eggs were approved, just as happened in Alberta, Canada, the scheme would fail because no one wants to wait a year for a debtor dollar and buy stamps enough to equal that dollar plus four cents. The very people that will note for it will be the first to repudiate the plan, and to yammer for sound U. S. backed money in all dealings in which they participate.

If it should pass, one shudders to think of what a Brobdingnagian jest it will be on California. From Maine's salty coast to "where rolls the Oregon," a guffaw, a belly laugh would rise in raucus volume to rend the blue firmament. Reverberations of this mirth would crackle around the world. It would also mean another influx of elderly folk. In every state "pa" and "ma" would pack their worldly goods into the family car and hit the highway for California which hands out $30 every Thursday. The fact that this kind of currency would have no standing among either merchants or bankers, would not even cause them to hesitate. They could well reason that whether or no the $30 Thursday was good, the fertile brains of those who are able to gull their hundreds of thousands into voting for Utopias of the Never Never Land, would hatch something else that might miraculously work.

When the $30 every Thursday fails, either at the polls or in practice, we may look for another scheme from the same source as this. It will make little difference to these inventors of delusion whether their scheme works or not. They have struck "pay dirt" in the credulity of thousands who believe the government owes them a living. Barnum found it first, and declared in effect that it was an inexhaustible source of riches. "One is born every minute," said Mr. Barnum, fifty years ago. Today considering the increase in population, we would say that sixty are born every minute.

A flood of circulars, newspapers, letters comes through the mail, advocating this scheme that was borrowed intact from the Alberta, Canada, where it failed miserably. It costs a heap of money to propagandize six million people in California, no one can say how much because under present laws none may check the books of the promoters. But one thing is very certain the money is coming from the pockets of those who can least afford to spend it, elderly dreamers who have failed somehow, through generosity, prodigality, mental lack, or effort when younger to amass a competence. One suspects that many of the converts to this gigantic hoax, have been habitual gamblers all their lives; not gamblers, perhaps, in the usual meaning of the word. They have not been poker players, perhaps, nor followed the ponies. Rather they have always looked for opportunity to make thousands out of hundreds in some sort of speculation.

Thousands of people in their younger days have speculated in real estate, in corn, and wheat, in minig or in shares of something or other that never panned out. They have been gulled, just as they are being gulled today, into believing they may obtain in a hard boiled world, something for nothing. They have lost their little and gained nothing. Now in their uneasy old age, they are investing small change that they sadly need, in one more get-rich-quick scheme, Ham and Eggs.

SUPERVISORS TO SPONSOR DAY AT STATE FAIR

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 14.—Members of the board of supervisors of Nevada county will sponsor a Nevada County Day, September 9 at the California State Fair and arrange for a caravan to the grounds, including school buses for children, Secretary Manager Robert Muckler was informed.

A tentative committee to handle the arrangements will meet next week.

Members of the committee will include the Board of Supervisors, W. W. Esterly, Mayor John R. Thomas, Dan Stewart, and Dave Baun of Grass Valley; Mayor Ben Hall, Emmett Gallagher, H. F. Sofje and Fred Cassidy of Nevada City; W. W. White, and Clyde Edmunds of Truckee; and Miles Tilden and Mrs. W. A. Cunningham of North San Juan.

HUNDREDS ATTEND HOME COMING AT FOREST HILL

Several hundred people motored to Forest City above Alleghany for the big annual "Home Coming" week end. The residents of the little town had prepared a royal welcome for all of those who come. There was dancing Saturday evening and Sunday was occupied with games, amateur hour, swimming contests, boxing, foot races, until late evening when visitors from all over the state started returning.

James Williams is acting chief of police for Chief Garfield Robson while he is away on his two weeks vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Robson are visiting relatives in Santa Rosa and it is understood they will go to the fair on Treasure Island before they return.

Max Ruth returned home Saturday from a three weeks visit with relatives in LeGrande, Oregon.

Mrs. Rosie Fradelizio and daughter, Miss Mamie Fradelizio, and Miss Ida Pratti, left this morning for a week in San Francisco and at the fair. Miss Pratti is stenographer in the Plaza Grocery store and has a week's vacation.

Mrs. Mamie Flynn is visiting with her sister in Grass Valley. Her little niece, Doris Brown, had her tonsils removed the latter part of last week. Mrs. Flynn still feels the effects of a recent bite of a black widow spider.

Mrs. Geary Feagans returned home Sunday morning from a two weeks vacation at Manzanita Lake. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Skelton, of Red Bluff were with her. Raymond Feagan motored up to the lake and returned with his mother. The Manzanita Camp offers many delightful diversions.

FIRE N FACTORY STREET

An alarm turned in at three o'clock this afternoon brought the firemen and truck out in a hurry to extinguish a fire on Factory street near the Ernest Peterson home. The cause of the fire is unknown. It started in a little gully in grass and a few trees and was put out in a few minutes.

BOXERS SIGN UP

In boxing contests at the Miner Workers Protective League picnic at Lake Olmpia Wednesday Eleon Tobiassen will box with Chris Paulson, Lava Cap miner; Dave Tobiassen will box with Melvin Dodge. Elton Tobiassen was on the boxing program at Forest City Sunday and his brother, Bill sang in the musical program.

GOLD FLAT SCHOOL OPENS AUGUST 28

The Gold Flat school will open August 28, it was announced today by Jos. Day, member of the school board. The teachers for the district, O. B. Lake and Irma Atkins, who were in charge last year, were re-elected.

FINAL DRIVE ON INITIATIVES IS BEING MADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Racing against the clock, rival groups of petition solicitors are pounding the pavements in virtually every city, town and hamlet in California—in an eleventh hour, whirlwind drive to qualify referendum and recall proposals for the special election balloton November 7.

Intensified during the last few days, due to the approaching Sept. 19 deadline for qualifying petitions with the Secretary of State, the battle for signatures is raging on all fronts, with solicitors nabbing qualified voters at nearly every street corner in the populous areas.

Two separate recall petition drives, aimed at Governor Olson, have been in progress, but petitions of one group were withdrawn when they were found to be faulty—and the second recall organization is still far from its goal. A gubernatorial recall, to qualify for this year's ballot, requires the signatures of 325,00 qualified voters.

Referendum petitions against the Atkinson oil conservation act, which were placed in circulation by oil operators favoring uncontrolled production, also appear to be running into difficulties, with more than an even chance that the action of the legislature in seeking to halt squandering of oil resources will be upheld—and that the petitions will fall to qualify. To be successful, referendum petitions this year require 132,000 signatures.

Two other referendum petition movements, now in a break neck drive to get under the wire before September 19, are aimed at anti-loan shark bills passed by the legislature.

Petitions also are on the streets for a proposed Daylight Savings Act, which would place California on a time schedule similar to that now in effect in the east, from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September of each year. This proposal, an initiative act. has until next June to qualify, as it would not appear on the ballot until the 1940 General Election. The signatures of some 212,000 registered voters are required.

The only measure already qualified for a place on the November 7 ballot are a new chiropractic act and the so-called Ham and Eggs pension scheme. But even if no other measures qualify, the special election promises to be the hottest in California's somewhat torrid political history—for the Thirty Thursday issue is packed with enough dynamite to rock the state and grab the spotlight of the entire nation.

Ham and Eggs is a burning issue!

DEATH SUMMONS MRS. ANNA INGOLS

Mrs. Anne Christine Ingols, native of the little town of Sebastopal on the San Juan Ridge, died there Saturday evening. She was the wife of Edmund Ingols. It was while going to perform the wedding service at the Weinman home at San Juan that Rev. and Mrs. H. Buckner were injured when the car turned over in the Weinman lot.

Mrs. Ingols was born January 5, 1876 and educated in the Sebastopol school. She was a devout Christian and a member of the San Juan Methodist church.

In addition to her husband she is survived by a sister, Miss Caroline Weinman and brother, Charles A. Weinman. Funeral services were held this morning in the San Juan Methodist church with Rev. H. H. Buckner officiating.

Elton Tobiassen, Warren Goldsmith and Delbert Williams expect to attend college at Davis this coming term. This is the second term for young Goldsmith.

LEARN BY DOING IS NEW SCHOOL TEACHING RULE

This article comes from Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City, as a contribution to public information on education.

Was it Saint Augustine who said that those who never stir from home read only one page of the Book of Life? Modern schools all over the world are busily turning pages for their youngsters—not necessarily the last and most inaccessible pages, for adjoinng towns and communities are still new to most of our boys and girls.

England and Germany have been leaders in the use of educational excursions, at home and abroad. Trips are part of the educational pattern in Austria, France, Italy, Russia, Poland and Japan.

Naturally in a country as large as our own, travel means expense, even when various tourist facilities chip in with rock bottom rates. But one enterprising group of sixteen boys and girls from a rural school in Bentley, Kansas, earned $500, chartered a bus, and traveled a month through eighteen states and Canada. It is becoming customary for many school groups to visit Washington and New York City. The two current World's fairs find school children their most ardent visitors.

Perhaps the greatest thrill of all comes to a city youngster who is adopted into a farmer's family, and for the first time takes part in sowing or harvesting crops, drawing water, cutting wood. Last fall the ninth graders of Lincoln School, an experimental school of Columbia University's Teachers College, in New York City, traveled up to the Berkshires to spend on a farm ten days which have colored the entire year's school program. Nevar would these young visitors be more keenly aware of their fellow humans, more eager to understand "what makes the wheels go round." Wheels move more slowly and simply in rural districts, and fourteen year olds have a better chance to keep up with them.

The expedition entailed much planning, and many contacts to be made in the neighboring village—with the library, with farm bureau, with owners of farms and mills, and with the citizens, particularly those familiar with the history of the community. Once they understood the nature of this invasion they cooperated enthusiastically.

On the first day of school last fall every child answered the question: "From the time you opened your eyes this morning, what did you do until you entered this room?" Characteristic of the answers was the following statement: "I shut off the alarm clock, closed the window, turned on the heat in the radiator, snapped on the light in the bathroom, dressed and went into the dining room. I had toast made on an electric toaster, milk from a bottle. I rushed out and rang for the elevator, rode down to the first floor. I walked to the subway and boarded a train for school." From such an environment highly mechanized, industrial, inter-dependent, and urban, came a group of twenty five students to adventure in the country, where the shrill crow of a cock was the only alarm clock, the water remained in the well until it was pumped up by hand, and heat came from wood crackling in a fireplace, or it didn't come at all!

Beginning to study early American life as a prelude to the study of the present machine or power age, educators sought means of showing these children of the "push button period" how life went on before the coming of the machine. Choice fell on a little village in western Massachusetts, well known to some of the teachers, where the people were still living in an agrarian, almost self-sufficient economy. For ten days they lived together in an old farmhouse. There was no looking on from the outside—they did the planning, marketing, budgeting, chores, and household tasks. The expense ran about twelve dollars per child. Let their own note books go on with the story:

"You look for a faucet, only to find yourself confronted by a pump, after a little manipulation you develop a technique in pumping and sit down to dinner with an eye on the water pitcher, feeling very

AUTO TURNS OVER; DRIVER IS INJURED

John Udnich of Nevada City while driving toward Grass Valley last evening failed to make the turn at Town Talk and his car ran into a ditch and turned over on its top. Holmes Funeral Home ambulance responded to a call and took Udnich to Jones Memoral hospital. He was later removed to the county hospital. Superintendent R. W. Rodda stated this forenoon the man has a laceration on his head. It is expected he will be able to leave shortly. Captain Joe Blake investigated the accident.

ARE YOU SURE YOU CAN VOTE?

Are you registered?

If you failed to vote in either the primary or general election of 1938, then you are not now registered.

If you changed your residence since you last registered, and have not notified your county clerk, then you are not registered.

And, you have only until September 28 to do it.

September 28 is the last day you have to qualify for voting in the special election which has been called by Governor Olson for November 7.

Check your registration now, with your county clerk, or the deputy designated by him, who is nearest your home.

BIDS ASKED FOR WATER GATES ON SHASTA PROJECT

Part of the mechanism to regulate the flow of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers at the Shasta and Friant dams of the Central Valley Project has been ordered by the United States Bureau of Reclamation in an invitation for bids for furnishing ten 86-inch ring seal gates. The bids are to be opened in Denver, Colo., at 2 p. m. September 12.

Two of the gates, complete with frames, hoists and electric motor, are for two needle valve river control outlets through Shasta Dam which is under construction north of Redding. Shasta will hae a total of 20 outlets through the dam which can be used to regulate the Sacramento river.

The other eight gates ordered, with frames, hoists and motors, are to be installed in tandem in four of the river control outlets through the Friant Dam, soon to be constructed on the upper San Joaquin near Fresno, Calif. Bids for building Friant Dam are to be opened by the Bureau of Reclamation in Sacramento on September 7.

To be included with the Friant gates are four sets of conduit lining which will consist of section of ribbed semi-steel pipe, each 99 inches outside diameter and about 44 feet in length. The pipes and gate frames will be imbedded in the concrete of the dam.

Friant will have a total of 12 outlets through the dam—six for river regulation, four to discharge into the Friant-Kern Canal, and two into the Madera Canal.

CHAMBER TO DEDICATE PLAQUE AT PICNIC

The Chamber of Commerce at its picnic and barbecue at Skillman Flat on August 27, will dedicate a cast iron plaque imbedded in a cement table, to the California public. The plaque was designed and cast by A. T. (Baldy) Fairholm and was cast through the courtesy of the Miners Foundry. A barbecue pit, walled with stones and cement. Cutting table, and serving table were also made of stones and cement through the assistance proferred by Supervisor DeWitt Nelson and Leland Smith of the national forest service. The plaque which will set in the serving table is 36 inches long by 14 inches wide, and reads:

"Dedicated to the public by the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce."

HOUSE BURNS

The forest service received a message that a house in Celestial Valley was partly destroyed by fire this forenoon.

CHAMBER PICNIC WILL BE HELD AT SKILLMAN FLAT

Window cards are out announcing the big picnic, August 27, on Skillman Flat east of Nevada City on the Tahoe-Ukiah highway. A full program of games will be given among them being greased pig, greased pole, husband calling, rolling pin throwing and soft ball games. The big affair is under the auspices of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce and a splendid time is promised all who attend.

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen will be chef and barbecue the beef. Other food to be served will be beans, coffee and beer, all free to those attending. The price of admission will be $1.00 per couple to adults. Minor children will be admitted free when accompanied by their parents.

Skillman Flat is a mile above the junction of the Washington road down in a big shady pine covered flat where there are tables and seats. The camp is maintained by the forest service and will be clean and cool.

Tickets will be on sale at the Nevada City Shamber of Commerce rooms and in business houses in a short time. Be on the lookout for these as you are assured of a delightful time.

CCC BOYS HELP PUT OUT MENDOCINO FIRES

While no fires were reported for the national forest here, headquarters continued to send men to the scene of fires in the Mendocino forest. The fire that started about the middle of last week in Fouts Springs and spread to brush and timber land still rages out of contsol.

Sunday morning 15 CCC enrollees from Hobart Mills and 25 from Camp Forbes near Forest Hill and one foreman were sent to the Mendocino forest fire. Yesterday afternoon five crew bosses and three empty trucks were sent to the same district. The trucks are to transport men about fire lines. Men have also been drawn from the El Dorado and Plumas districts to the Mendocino national forest fire.

STATE WARDEN PUTS OUT FIRE BUG BLAZES

State Fire Warden Will F. Sharpe has had a busy week end with three fires. A call came from the Lake Vera district at about noon Sunday and the blaze was under control in a short time. A call then came from Wolf that a fire had broken out in the Lime Kiln-Clear Creek district. This was quickly extinguished. This morning at 10 o'clock a fire broke out on the George Cole ranch in the Lime Kiln district. Sharpe believes the fires in the Lim Kiln district are set as this is the eighteenth for the season. Ranger Sharpe, crew and pumper truck responded to all three fires which were small.

NEVADA CITY GIRLS IN SACRAMENTO PARADE

Miss Ellen Curtis returned to her work in Sacramento last evening after spending the day in this city with her mother, Mrs. C. Muscardini of Clay street. Her niece, Miss Joyce Henwood, who has been spending a two weeks vacation in Sacramento accompanied her here. The two girls were in the pageant in Sacramento on the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The special event with about 200 girls in it was held at the Junior college and was a portion of the last events of the big centennial.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Simons and daughter, Mrs. F. Carleton and her two daughters, Jeanne and Virginia, all of Burlingame, left Nevada City Saturday after spending a week with their cousin, Mrs. Mamie Muscardini of Clay street.

Huge smoke clouds to the south of Nevada City this afternoon came from a fire burning near Auburn. Many inquiries came in regard to its nearness to this city.

Pensions Increased

SACRAMENTO, July 14.—California's maximum monthly old age pension was increased from $35 to $40 under a bill just passed by Congress. The federal contribution is increased from $15 to $20 a month, which will raise the pension ceiling automatically.

That news, humming over the wires a few days ago, brought cheer to the hearts of thousands of California's elder citizens. More and more this nation is coming to recognize the humanitarian obligation and the economic necessity for taking care of its aged dependents. And of all the states, California stands first in doing something about it.

Pension news is always interesting news, so it will bear repeating that California pays the highest pension in the nation. In Texas the top pension is $12. In Florida it's $10. Arkansas pays $6.08. California pays her half of the nation's top pension of $40, and the United States treasury matches the ante. Both state and national guarantee their pension promises, and they're good as gold.

Among our elder citizens who, understandably enough, have been chasing the mirage of $120 a month promised by the 30-Thursday plan, thinkers are beginning to emerge to ask in all seriousness just what will happen to this highest pension award in the nation — once they catch the mirage. Does the state stand behind the $120 promise; does the federal treasury guarantee the payment?

That is a question for promoters of 30-Thursday to answer. The old folks, led by the evangelistic fervor of the 30-Thursday leaders to contribute their pennies, nickels and dimes to the 30-Thursday buildup, deserve at least an answer. We only know that the Constitution of these United States provides for only one monetary system, and that doesn't embrace printing press scrip. It declares that no money system is legal or valid without the federal government and the gold reserves behind it. Yes, it's a question for the 30-Thursday promoters and the sooner it's answered the fairer it will be for everybody—and the elder citizens most of all.

Save California!

"Save California from disaster!"

With that challenging appeal to California citizens, in every walk of life, to enlist in the campaign against the so-called Ham and Eggs amendment, former Attorney General U. S. Webb today characterized the 30-Thursday pension proposal as "a one-way road to ruin and bitter disillusionment."

"If the voters approve this plan," asserted the former Attorney General, "California would face a depression compared with which the tragic consequences of the existing depression would be insignificant."

Webb, state chairman of the campaign against the Ham and Eggs act, which will appear on the ballot at the special election on November 7, announced that Northern California Citizens Against 30-Thursday—the organization which will conduct the election battle in northern counties—has opened headquarters at 111 Sutter Street.

Clem Whitaker, San Francisco publicist, and advertising executive, has been appointed as Northern California campaign director and stated that volunteer citizens' groups will be organized at once in every northern county.

Former Attorney General Webbs' condemnation of the big pension proposal which purports to guarantee citizens over 50 years of age a pension of $30 per week for life, was predicated on three major points:

1.—That based on his knowledge of law and economics from his thirty-six years as Attorney General of California, he is convinced the plan is impractical, uuworkable and entirely valueless.

2.—That should a majority of the voters approve it, California's public treasuries would shortly be filled with worthless paper; relief payments would either end or be drastically curtailed present pensions for the aged would be stopped for lack of funds; schools, police and fire departments and other essential functions of government would be crippled, and a depression would set in that would make all other depressions fade into insignificance.

3.—That in view of the present trend toward an adequate national pension system, which will provide elderly citizens with real American dollars instead of worthless paper, it is no time for California to risk economic disaster by thoughtlessly voting for a plan which can't possibly work and which would plunge the whole state into chaos.

"America in recent years has entered upon new ways of life," said Webb. "Among the most important advances in social and economic thought is the realization that society must assume the burden of caring for the old and incapaciated. It is quite natural for those immediately affected to be susceptible to promoters' schemes for using magic to help those in need, but it is dangerous that such schemes should impose upon faith, hope and credulity.

"We are approaching a nation-wide solution of this problem, but certainly it is not good common sense to risk the destruction of the commonwealth. It is conceivable that even before it could be determined whether the act is in violation of the federal constitution that a large percentage of California citizens would be thrown upon emergency federal relief due to confiscatory taxation and the breakdown of the state's economic structure. Every Californian should see at once to his registration and should make it his personal responsibility to go to the polls on election day and repudiate for all time this imposition of false hopes upon trusting people."

COMING "YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH MURDER"

Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing Prison for the past nineteen years, supplied the plot and factual background for the new Warner Bros, production, "You Can't Get Away With Murder" which opens Thursday at the Nevada Theatre with Humphrey Bogart as the star of its impressive cast.

It is a realistic picture of prison life, marked by several sequences, which mount to pitches of terrific excitement and culminating in one of the most moving death scenes ever filmed.

Halop plays the chief supporting role, and others who are prominent in the cast include Gale Page, Henry Travers, John Litel, Harold Huber, Harvey Stephens and Joe Sawyer.

The picture, which was adapted from a play written by Warden Lawes in collaboration with Jonathan Finn, presents Bogart in the most ruthless characterization he has ever been called upon to play in his brilliant career of screen villainy.

Bill Hatch, miner at the Lava Cap mine, who was moved from the Nevada City Sanitarium Tuesday, was able to leave his bed for a short time Saturday. He was rushed from the underground workings to the hospital where he was operated upon August 4.

MISS JOUBERT HONORED

CAMPTONVILLE, Aug. 14.—The Womens Club gave a pot luck dinner Wednesday evening in their club room in the Mayo building in honor of Miss Lesta Joubert, local high school teacher who was recently promoted to the staff of the Marysville Union high school at Marysville. The dinner consisted of six kinds of sandwiches, Spanish spaghetti, string beans, salad, cake and coffee. Following the dinner, Miss Joubert was presented with a lovely desk lamp by the club. A sociable evening was spent with the following present: Miss Lydia Groves, Mrs. Olive Groves, Mrs. Frank Meggers. Mrs. Richard Pfiffer, Mrs Barr, Mrs. M. G. Calvin, Miss Lesta Joubert, Miss Susette Dornberger, Mrs. Victor Dornberger, Miss Mary Hackley, Mrs. Julius Pauly, Mrs. Albert Flagg, Mrs. W. A. Hemleben, Mrs. J. W. Morehead, Mrs. Montgomery, Miss Elsie Price, Mrs. Pearl Liest, Mrs. Ethel Chatfield, Mrs. E. A. Espinosa, Mrs. W. C. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Epperson and small son and Mrs. Epperson's mother, Mrs. Ida Guenther, spent Sunday at the fair on Treasure Island.

Discuss Plans For State Elks Convention

"Old Bill," just a piece of lodgeroom "furniture," made an ideal seat for Darling Lane and Evelyn Wagner, two of the pretty young misses who will serve as hostesses at the state convention of the California Elks Association, to be held in Santa Monica Sept. 14, 15 and 16, as they discussed with lodge leaders plans for the entertainment of more than 5000 visitors. The men are (left to right) Owen Keown, P.E.R. and general convention chairman; Harold Coles, exalted ruler of Santa Monica Lodge, No. 906, and C. E. Hebenstreit, of Huntington Park, president of the state association.

LEARN BY DOING

Pride in achievement sings through all of the records. "We painted the garage after we put the slats on, wrecked the chicken coop, sawed wood—in other words, we worked."

A boy wrote: "That evening we finished kneading the bread and we baked it; when it was done it smelled delicious." Another boy: "There were a number of things to do. I decided on carpentering and it gave me a grand feeling of satisfaction when I nailed a board on straight."

Classroom learnings carried over into some of the comments: "The block and tackle has a mechanical advantage of four." "In wrecking the roof I used a first class lever." "A good example of the variation of the moment of force was that I was able to remove spikes with my wrecking bar which couldn't be budged with a short handled hammer."

Youngsters sat at night with their elbows on a red checked table cloth, earnest faces caught in the circle of lamplight, and demanded answers. Why did the trailer and car travel faster than the truck when haulling wood? How are gears used in climbing hills? Why did the car get stucy on wet grass where the truck could go easily? Why did a hot box develop on the wood saw? After such discussions they gathered around an old organ which they had found and repaired to sing hymns, to the surprise of their teacher friends, because "the organ seemed to prefer hymns."

PLEADS GUILTY

Robert Robson, arrested by Night Officer Frank Misner early Saturday morning for being intoxicated while driving a car, plead guilty in City Judge Miles Coughlin's court Saturday forenoon. The case was continued until a report can be secured from Probation Officer McGagin. Robson was released pending time for judgment.

CONGRESS ENDS NEW DEAL LEND SPEND ORGY

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN
Republican National Committeeman

Immediately after the Republican victories last November it was asserted in this place that the New Deal had come to the end of its road. Having led the American people up a blind alley, the New Deal was repudiated at the polls, we said. It was further contended that the days of blank check appropriations, wasteful and reckless spending, dangerous experiments and un-American activities were over.

The Democratic spokesman dissented. Yet surely the record of the last session of Congress fully bore out our prediction. Indeed, even casual observers recognized that President Roosevelt lost control of Congress early in the session, despite the overwhelming Democratic majorities in the House and Senate. By the time the session came to an end the New Deal was in full retreat.

Far and away the most significant action in this Congressional session was the refusal of the House of Representatives to even consider the President's mis-labeled "lending" bill. Its original figures cut in half by the Senate, this bill was tossed into the fastebasket by the House. Conceived in cunning and deceit, this proposed legislation met a deserved ill fate.

The fact that this bill ,as originally proposed, would have permitted the New Deal to spend another four billion dollars which some day would have to be paid back by the worker and formers of this country was only one reason why it was obnoxious. More important was the fact that it would have started this nation on the road to a State Socialism which would have jeopardized all private enterprises eventually. From that evil, thank Heaven, a sturdy patriotic majority of the House of Representatives saved us.

As was to be expected, Mr. Roosevelt let loose a loud howl of protest when hs Socialistic program went into the wastebasket. He said in effect that the action of the House would have injurious effects on business and industry and would prevent the re-employment of many thousands of the unemployed. In other words, his contention was that this Socialistic spending measure was the solution for the Roosevelt depression.

It was an amazing statement. In the first place, all the business and industrial indices commenced to advance as soon as the House action became known. Many industrial securities sold at new high prices for the year. As a matter of fact business did not begin to shake off the lethargy which has marked it until Congress indicated a spirit of independence in the last month.

But, let us suppose Mr. Roosevelt was correct in his contention. Was not his statement a surprising confession of ineptness on his part? If his latest spending plan was the remedy for the depression why did he keep it secret so long? Why did he not undertake such a program several years ago? Could it be true that Mr. Roosevelt only wants his country to be prosperous in Presidential election years?

Of course, the President's protest against the House action should not be taken seriously. It was an expression of chagrin and anger over his inability to have his own way. The country apparently has not been disturbed by Mr. Roosevelt's gloomy wail. In every part of the country the House action was greeted with enthusiastic praise.

The real meaning of the House action is that at last the country has become aroused over New Deal spending and taxation. Were this not so, the House would not have acted as it did. Therein lies the explanation why the New Deal is finished for spending other people's money was all the New Dealers had left. It was their only solution for the country's economic ills.

Not only has Congress put its foot down on greater and greater spending programs but it also has injected a little sense into the administration of the relief problem. It has repealed the harmful undistributed profits tax on business. It has halted the pyramiding of payroll and pay envelope taxes for old age pensions. At last a step has been taken to get a little sense into our labor relations through appointment of a House committee to investigate the present situation, so objectionalble to everyone.

A review of the work of the last Congress would not be complete unless a word were said regarding the important part played by the Republicans of House and Senate. They led the fight for all the reforms previously enumerated. They have been fighting for those reforms for the last two and one half years.

The fact that they have achieved so much is evidence of the sagacity of the Republican leaders, Senator Charle L. McNary in the Senate and Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr. in the House. The results show what can be done by a militant, determined minority party, bent on being constructive as well as critical. It is a good indication of what the country can expect in the way of constructive reforms when the Republicans assume control of the Federal government in January 1941.
